Tribe would have helped secure an easier route to obtaining an assured NCAA tournament berth. Kleinecke, though, understands that in lieu of their loss on Saturday, playing a tested team like William & Mary will lend valuable experience to his young and eager team.

"I have a lot of respect for William and Mary," Kleinecke said. "They gave us nothing and made us earn every point. They were a very good team for us to face, and if we keep fighting and keep working hard, eventually things will come out our way."

The Aggies will be hitting the road this week for their final three regular season matches. A&M will face the University of Texas on Tuesday and will then square off against Kansas State University and the University of Kansas on Friday and Saturday, respectively.
