class-free afternoon to relax outdoors.

"They should do this all the time," said Jeff Trahan, a junior turf grass management major.

Aaron Kinsey, a junior accounting major and head of public relations for the Corps, said that along with dinner, evening formation was canceled and the most cadets were given the evening off.

"People were just hanging out, playing basketball and softball. I saw some 42 (dominoes) games," Kinsey said.

The cadets were not the only people on campus enjoying the afternoon off; elsewhere, people were taking the opportunity to enjoy the day and escape the darkness.

trying to bring order." Later, Marine Cpl. Courtney Davis, collecting automatic weapons at a checkpoint, said he'd heard from his superiors that there were still pockets of resistance.

With fighting on the wane, U.S. defense officials said Monday they soon would recall two of five aircraft carrier battle-groups stationed in the Persian Gulf.

"I would anticipate that the major combat engagements are over," Maj. Gen. Stanley McChrystal said at the Pentagon. "I think we will move into a phase where it is smaller, albeit sharp fights."

cut, and we are already losing summer school courses. Now, students will have to pay that much more to see a football game, when money could be put back into classes — the reason we are here in the first place."

Senior agricultural systems major Ron Flippin said that he has no problem with the increase if it means a more successful football program.

"It doesn't bother me. I mean, we are paying to go to 10 or 12 games," he said. "We haven't won the Big 12 since 1998, we didn't go to a bowl game this last year, and

NEWS IN BRIEF

Early B-CS voting begins today

Early voting starts today for contested municipal and state board races in Bryan and College Station for the May 3 election. This will be the first year the cities will use the new electronic Slate voting machines, which replace the punch-card system. Officials said the machines have been received so far.

People trust the new system, said Connie Hooks, College Station City secretary. The polls will be open from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. today through April 25, and from 7 a.m. to 5 p.m. April 28 - 29.

Lemann to head Columbia journal

NEW YORK (AP) — Nicholas Lemann, a longtime journalist and award-winning author, agreed to head Columbia University's journalism school, the university president announced Tuesday.

His appointment is subject to the approval of the university's trustees.

Lemann has been a Washington correspondent for The New Yorker since 1991, writing the "Letter from Washington" column and articles on national and international events.

Presentations Tuesday that were happy to note have.

Steven Burke, a freshman electrical engineering major, had a test that will now have to be rescheduled.

Executive Vice President Provost David Prior said he would travel when conditions permit.

Koichiro Matsuura, the group's director, called on customs officials, art dealers and countries bordering Iraq to do all they could to block the trading of stolen antiquities.
