a highly competitive 7-0 finish. "I think we will treat them just as we would the first time we played them," Cass said. "(Losing the last meeting) maybe gives them a little more motivation, but we will take them very seriously.' The match for the Raiders is not something to scoff at. The Aggies have beaten Texas Tech 31 out of the 34 times the two schools met during the last 25

"It shows how tough our conference is when the No. 4 team in the conference is No. 10 in the nation," said Texas Tech Head Coach Tim Siegel. "Our guys have done a good job all year playing hard and facing challenges and adversity."

The Aggies have faced some adversity of their own this season. The club has suffered from a lack of depth that has plagued it since the opening gun. The Aggies lost key starter sophomore Ante Matijevic twice this year due to illness. In both matches, played against Texas and Oklahoma State, the Aggies fell by a single point. Matijevic has become an important cog in the Aggies' wheel this year; he was named Big 12 Player of the Week on two separate occasions, and earned the Big 12 Singles Championship at

But Matijevic was not the only Aggie to receive the honor. Senior All-American Ryan Newport garnered an individual championship at No. 1 and sophomore Lester Cook was awarded the singles championship at No. 2. The three players combined compiled a record of 16-3 during league play. Newport has also reached a career

The main issue for the Aggies Friday, and throughout the tournament, will be the same question that nagged them early in the year: the inconsistency of their doubles play. After losing the doubles point in the last two matches, Cass has made the decision to shuffle the Aggies' lineup and move Newport and junior Khaled El Dorry up from court No. 3 to No. 2. They will be playing behind the No. 8 duo of Cook and Matijevic, who will battle at No. 1 for the Aggies.
