Officials may charge man who stowed away aboard UPS flight

By David Koenig
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

DALLAS— A stowaway shipped himself from New York to Dallas and startled his parents and a deliveryman by crashing out of a cargo crate, leaving federal officials scrambling to figure out how he eluded airport security.

Charles D. McKinley, 25, a shipping clerk from New York, was arrested Saturday on unrelated warrants after an overnight odyssey to his parents' home near Dallas while packed in a crate said to contain a computer, monitor and clothes.

Federal officials are considering whether to file new charges against the man. A federal stowaway law makes it illegal to board or hide on a plane or ship without the owner or pilot's knowledge.

McKinley told police he took a passenger flight from New York to Kentucky, where a friend who is a pilot for United Parcel Service helped him ship himself air freight to Dallas.

Authorities, however, believe that McKinley, with help from at least one co-worker at the warehouse where he works, loaded himself in a box measuring 42 by 36 by 15 inches and followed a roundabout path to Texas.

The box was trucked from Kennedy Airport to Newark,

N.J. From there, said FBI spokeswoman Lori Bailey, the stowaway flew on Kitty Hawk Cargo to Niagra Falls, N.Y., Fort Wayne, Ind., and finally on to Dallas.

“My husband asked him, ‘Man, what are you doing in this crate?’ He said he was coming home.”

When the crate got to Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport on Saturday morning, it was picked up by Billy Ray Thomas, a driver for Pilot Air Freight's Grapevine office. He delivered it to McKinley's parents' house in the Dallas suburb of DeSoto.

Thomas went to unload the 350-pound crate from his truck, and saw a pair of eyes inside the box, and believed there was a dead body inside.

The 5-foot-8, 170-pound McKinley then broke open the box and crawled out, police said. The deliveryman, shaken by the turn of events, went to a nearby shopping center and called police.

McKinley's mother told

KDFW-TV in Dallas she stunned to see her son on the box.

“My husband asked, ‘Man, what are you doing this crate?’ He said he was coming home,” she said.

In broadcast interview McKinley said that he took the unusual trip because he was homesick and a thought he could save money by flying cargo. McKinley said he took no food or water on the 15-hour trip, just a phone, which didn't work.

“I'm sitting there thinking ‘Oh God, I don't know what I'm doing this,’” McKinley said. “I'm sitting there thinking like any minute someone will notice that there's somebody sitting inside this crate. No one did.”

His box was carried in a pressurized, heated cabin on Kitty Hawk planes but it just as easily have been placed in the plane's lower, unpressurized holds, said Richard Phillips, chief executive of Pilot Air Freight.

“He could easily have died,” Phillips said.

The cargo itinerary was cheap, either. Pilot Air Freight charged $550, and at that price “He could have flown first class,” Phillips said.

The incident has raised concerns about the security of the nation's cargo system.

8-month-old girl among victims in Orange County molestation case

By Chelsea J. Carter
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

SANTA ANA, Calif. — An 8-month-old girl was identified by investigators Tuesday as one of the alleged victims of a couple charged with videotaping and photographing acts of child molestation.

It was not clear whether investigators identified the baby from the more than 100 videotapes that were seized from the home of David Shoutyh Hwang and his wife, Sheila Sikat, said Orange County sheriff's spokesman Jim Amormino.

“Because of the media, we received information that led to the identity of the baby as a victim,” he said.

The baby, identified only as living in Texas, brings to at least eight the number of girls Hwang and his wife are accused of molesting, Amormino said.

“We do fear that there will be more victims as investigators go through the tapes,” he said.

Hwang, 32, and Sikat, 23, were arrested Sept. 3 after authorities searched their home on an anonymous tip. The tapes were discovered in a trunk, authorities said.

The couple were charged Friday with counts each of using a minor for sex acts. Hwang was charged with 21 counts of lewd acts on child. Sikat faces four counts of that charge according to court records.

They have pleaded innocent. Hwang was jailed without bail and Sikat was released on a posting bond.

Telephone calls by The Associated Press to Hwang's attorney, Mike Harkness, and Sikat's attorney, Marc X. Carlos, were not immediately returned.

Amormino said investigators had viewed date less than a dozen tapes.

“They have many, many more tapes throughout. Some tapes are two hours long, and I have to document all the acts,” he said. “It's very laborious process.”

Authorities have identified at least two girls on the tape, including a 4-year-old girl in Orange County.

“They have no kids. The question is how they gain access to the kids,” Amormino said.
