Kristen Strutz, played her final game for the Aggies. Strutz helped lead the Aggies to an overall record of 68-22-6, four trips to the third round of the NCAA tournament, two trips to the NCAA quarterfinals and two Big 12 Championships. For her career, Strutz finished fourth all-time at A&M in points (104), fifth in the career goals (34) and second in career assists (36).
"It has been an honor to play for Texas A&M," Strutz said. "I know that this team will continue to play at a high level and will only be better next season."

another garrison.
About a dozen swarming teenagers dragged the soldiers out of the wreckage and beat them with concrete blocks, the witnesses said.
"They lifted a block and hit them with it on the face," said Younis Mahmoud, 19.
It was unknown whether the soldiers were alive or dead when pulled from the wreckage.
Initial reports said the soldiers' throats were cut. But another witness, teenager Bahaa Jassim, said the wounds appeared to have come from bullets.
"One of the soldiers was shot under the chin and the bullet came out of his head. I saw the hole in his helmet. The other was shot in the throat," Jassim said.
Some people looted the vehicle of weapons, CDs and a backpack, Jassim said.
"They remained there for over an hour without the Americans knowing anything about it," he said. "I ... went and told other troops."

Television footage showed the soldiers lying splayed on the ground as U.S. troops searched the area. One victim's foot appeared to have been severed.
The frenzy recalled the October 1993 Somalia, when locals dragged the bodies of Marines killed in fighting with warlords through the streets.
In Baqouba, just north of Baghdad, Iraq, a detonated a roadside bomb as a 4th Infantry Division convoy passed, killing one soldier and wounding two others, the military said.
In Baghdad, Brig. Gen. Mark Kimmitt confirmed the Mosul deaths but refused to give details.
"We're not going to get ghoulish about it," he said.
The savagery of the attack was unusual in Mosul, once touted as a success story in contrast to the anti-American violence seen in Sunni Muslim areas north and west of Baghdad.
