Kerry extends dominance Kerry wins in Tennessee and Virginia

WASHINGTON — John Kerry vanquished his Dixie-bred rivals in Virginia and Tennessee Tuesday, unstoppable in his march toward the Democratic nomination with a Southern sweep that extended his dominance to every region of the country.

"Americans are voting for change — East and West, North and now in the South," Kerry declared to the roar of supporters in Fairfax, Va., chanting, "Kerry! Kerry!"

John Edwards, Wesley Clark and Howard Dean clung quixotically to the hope that Kerry would stumble on his own or by scandal, but party leaders began pressing for the nomination fight to end. Kerry was pocketing about half the vote in Virginia — with Edwards of North Carolina a poor second and Clark of Arkansas a far-distant third.

With two poor finishes, Clark considered dropping out. The key to his decision was the closely fought battle for second in Tennessee against Edwards, aides said.

Dean, the fallen front-runner, finished in single digits in Virginia and Tennessee.

Edwards, a successful trial lawyer before entering politics, tells voters at every stop that he is the only candidate who could beat Texas-reared Bush in his own backyard, the South, yet he lost to a Massachusetts Brahmin in Dixie. Edwards will remain in the race, aides said Tuesday, pointing his troubled campaign to Wisconsin and March 2, when 10 delegate-rich states hold elections.

With some Southern comfort, Kerry has won 12 of 14 contests — seven by nearly half the vote — on the East and West coasts, in the Midwest, the Great Plains and the Southwest.

"The wreckage of the Bush economy is all around us," Kerry told supporters as some party elders said it was about time to rally behind a nominee. "Anybody but Bush," said Charles Edwards, 50, of Falls Church, Va., who decided to vote for Kerry as he entered his voting booth. "I'd vote for the devil."

Kerry said he and his fellow Vietnam veterans are still fighting for their country.

"For more than three years, this administration has failed to tell the truth about their economic record," Kerry told supporters.
