FRDO, I'VE DECIDED TO TRY TO PASS YOU OFF AS A GEEK AT ABGIECON THIS WEEKEND.

WHICH MEANS WE NEED TO QUIZ OVER "GEEK CONVERSATION TOPICS"

FIRST QUESTION: IN A FIGHT, PICARD OR KIRK?

KIRK!

TRUE OR FALSE: GEEKS LIKE IT WHEN YOU REFER TO ANIME AS "JAPANIMATION?"

FALSE!

AND FINALLY... WHAT IS THE ABSOLUTE WORST THING TO HAPPEN TO ANY SCI/FI OR COMIC BOOK MOVIE FRANCHISE?

UM, JAR JAR BINKS?

CORRECT! I ALSO WOULD HAVE ACCEPTED "NIPPLES ON THE BATSUIT" OR "THE NEW CATWOMAN COSTUME..."

Tulsa and Illinois." Self-said obviously did a remarkable UTEP, and the people at A&M should be very excited have him there. No one will harder than him, he is the state of Texas and he recruit that state as well as in America."

After landing at Eastern Airport at 1:30 p.m., G went to Reed Arena to with his new team before introduced as A&M's coach at 3 p.m.

"He wants to win now," A&M sophomore guard Antoine Wright, who has publicly that he would consider transferring after Watkins' nation. "That's what I want to hear. I'm not into waiting. I want to win right now."

not recommend any of them to Gates. Consequently, the candidate search was renewed in the fall of last year, and the finalists were selected for interviews.

The finalists for the position are: Kenneth Reeves, executive director for business development at Nola computer services; Joseph Paul, vice president for student affairs at the University of Southern Mississippi; Dean Brescianni, interim vice chancellor at the University of North Carolina Chapel Hill; and Lt. Gen. John Van Alstyne, Corps commandant at A&M. Matt Josefy, student body president and member of the search committee, said the vice president for student affairs needs to be someone who has worked heavily with students in some capacity, knows how to run an organization and has a love for A&M.

"The VP for student affairs is the most important position in terms of student advocacy and student involvement on this campus," Josefy said. "When student leaders come and go every year, the vice president for student affairs will still be here to maintain what A&M is known for, and that's student involvement."

The last two candidates to introduce themselves to students, faculty and staff are Prescianni, who will be here April 5-6, and Van Alstyne, April 7-8.

laptop so that if it is stolen and recovered, it can be returned.

"We may recover a laptop and have no way of returning it to the owner if there are no identifying marks," Baron said. "Sometimes the hard drive is erased, and there is no way to tell whose it was."

These concerns have led many laptop owners to leave their computers at home.

Robert Onstead, a senior marketing major, said he is cautious about carrying his laptop on campus.

"I don't take my laptop to school for many reasons," Onstead said. "Carrying it around among them is the possibility that it might get stolen."

Jeff Hanhan, a senior finance major, said it is more trouble than it's worth to bring his laptop to and from campus.

"Bringing a laptop to campus is too much of a hassle," he said. "It's just another thing to worry about."

With proper caution, a laptop can be safely used on campus, UPD said.

"The most important thing is to keep it secure at all times," Baron said. "Either on you, or locked up."
