Danish PM to receive an award in Texas for rescue of WWII Jews

COPENHAGEN, Denmark (AP) — Danish Prime Minister Anders Fogh Rasmussen will visit Houston later this month to receive an award honoring the country's World War II rescue of thousands of Jews from occupying Nazi forces.

Fogh Rasmussen, who will be in Houston April 20-22, will receive the Lyndon B. Johnson Moral Courage Award during a ceremony at the Holocaust Museum Houston on April 21, his office said Thursday.

The award was given to Denmark for "the miraculous action by people of all levels to save the Jewish population during the Holocaust," the museum said.

Previous recipients include U.S. Secretary of State Colin Powell and filmmaker Steven Spielberg who directed the Oscar-winning "Schindler's List."

German troops met no resistance when they invaded Denmark on April 9, 1940. The Danish government protested, but stayed in power and cooperated with the Nazis.

By 1943, efforts by the Danish resistance during the occupation led to martial law. In late September, some German officials tipped off Danish police about Adolf Hitler's order to round up Jews and deport them to concentration camps.

Danes spontaneously smuggled several thousand Jews across the Oresund Strait to safe neutral Sweden, dodging German patrols. About 7,300 Jews escaped, while 481 — mainly elderly and sick people who could not — were arrested and deported to a concentration camp in Theresienstadt, in what was then Czechoslovakia. Fifty-three died there.

Fogh Rasmussen will also speak at the Baker Institute for Public Policy at the University about the situation in the Middle East and the U.S.-Danish bilateral relations.

Two men held in stabbing on South Padre Island

AUSTIN (AP) — Two South Texas men were held early Thursday in a college student's spring break stabbing death on South Padre Island.

Law officers were searching for a third suspect in the March 20 slaying of St. Edward's University student David Garcia, 22, of Alamo. He was studying kinesiology at the Austin university and planned to graduate in December. Adrian Contreras, 18, and Armando Trevino Jr., 21, were arrested Monday in Donna, just east of McAllen, and charged with murder.

Both suspects were held in Cameron County Jail. Contreras also has been charged with possession of a controlled substance. He was being held in lieu of $325,000 bail. Trevino was being held in lieu of $300,000 bail.

Investigators also charged Contreras' brother, 19-year-old Jorge Alvarez Contreras, with murder. He was being searched for him.

Gus Reyna, chief of the Cameron County Park Ranger division, said that investigators believe Adrian Contreras stabbed Garcia.

think he misrepresented what Christianity was about — we want people to know the Lord."

Short also talked about Mel Gibson's "Passion of the Christ" and about God's love.

"The Bible tells us to love because he first loved us," Short said.

Just said she felt Short was trying to express love, but didn't feel he did it in a positive manner.

Jonas Wells, a sophomore political science and psychology major, thought Short's lectures were a good idea because they promoted discussion, but not necessarily because he agreed with Short.

"Sometimes the people who aren't in the majority don't have a platform to voice their beliefs," Wells said. "(Events such as) this allow the people that don't subscribe to the same beliefs as the majority to voice their opinions."

Short's sermon was interrupted when Stephen Liechty, a freshman general studies major, ran to the front of the crowd carrying a sign that said "God is a sock."

The sign drew a few laughs and comments from Tom Short and the students gathered to hear Liechty. Liechty said he didn't agree with Short, but thought that the speaker sparked controversy and gave people a chance to debate.

"I don't think there is anything wrong with having him out here talking."

Liechty said, "I was inspired to make the world a better place because a homeless man in New York City said one like it. I thought it was funny."

Lengthy discussion kept Short outside the plaza both Wednesday and Thursday.

Short will be in the academic plaza on Friday from noon to 5 p.m.

another person's world," Schmidt said. "Too many people can excuse their bigotry of GLBTA people because they do not know any gay people, but when they can put a face and name to the problem, it becomes harder to discriminate."

Schmidt said information made available this week is not only to help the GLBTA community but the heterosexual community as well.

"This week is a great opportunity for everyone to learn how to open up their minds and their hearts to people who are different from themselves," said junior biology major Ganiva Reyes. "Everyone should feel free to be who they are regardless of their sexual orientation."
