that he felt could recruit the state of Texas," Gillispie said. "He asked a lot of people, and a lot of people spoke highly of me so he hired me, basically over the phone."

Gillispie spent five seasons on Self's staff, three at Tulsa and two at the University of Illinois, before taking over as head coach at the University of Texas-El Paso.

"Billy did a great job for us at Tulsa and Illinois," Self said. "He is a huge reason why our teams experienced some success at those two schools."

Gillispie said Self was a mentor to him and that the two share a lot of the same philosophies about coaching basketball.

"It was a joy to work with (Self) because of our likenesses," Gillispie said.

So far Gillispie has been busy at A&M. He has already hired an assistant coach, Alvin Brooks, who has coaching experience at the University of Houston. Gillispie has also been a friendly face on campus, visiting with students at baseball games and tennis matches.

"I didn't know (going to the events) was such a big deal," Gillispie said. "I was doing what I've always done. Life is all about relationships, and I want to develop a million relationships while I'm at Texas A&M."

And Gillispie has built relationships wherever he has gone, which has made him a great coach and recruiter, according to Texas Association of Basketball Coach executive director Rick Sherley.

"He's got great relationships with all the basketball coaches in the state and gets along with everyone," Sherley said. "Billy just has a way with young people. He's got a positive attitude, and he's a good teacher."

For five of the past six seasons Gillispie has been a coach for an NCAA tournament team, while A&M hasn't had a team in the NCAA tournament since 1986. One of those two streaks will end during Gillispie's era.

"(Gillispie) obviously did a remarkable job at UTEP, and the people at Texas A&M should be very excited to have him there," Self said. "No one will work harder than him."

decision that they're going to get the runner at second or their going to be down 1-0," Evans said. "It's nice to have speed like (McDonald's) so we can (run that play)."

Gregory hit a home run over the center field wall in the bottom of the fourth to give the Aggies an insurance run, putting them ahead 2-0.

Gregory said the team's confidence comes from Kapchinski and the dominance she has displayed recently in the pitcher's circle.

"(Kapchinski) just knows that (batters) aren't going to reach home plate, and that's how she approaches every hitter," Gregory said. "The confidence she brings carries over to us."
