last redistricting, will be competing against Republican candidate Arlene Wohlgenuth in the Nov. 3, 2004, congressional race. Although he is running under the Democratic party, Edwards said he is running a bipartisan campaign.

As part of his campaign aimed at A&M, Edwards said he would try to lower tuition rates at A&M as well as universities nationwide and work for more students to get federal grants and loans.

"We have to keep doors of A&M open to everyone," Edwards said.

While at A&M, Edwards was a member of the Corps of Cadets and received the Earl Rudder/Brown Foundation Award.

In 2003, Edwards received the "Legislator of the Year Award" from the Association of the U.S. Army and is running on a slogan of "Strong National Defense." Edwards said that as a congressman he has worked to keep the army strong and would continue to support the military.

"My two boys live in a safer world today because of soldiers and families," Edwards said. "I know that I will spend my entire life making a down payment on that debt."

Retired Lt. Gen. Pete Taylor, a Vietnam veteran and Fort Hood commander, said Edwards has brought in $820 million in contributions to Fort Hood since he has been in Congress.

Retired Gen. Tom Schwartz, former commander in chief of U.S. forces in Korea, said that although he has never been politically active, he chose to support Edwards because he has character and integrity. Schwartz said Edwards also championed pay increases for soldiers, health care for active soldiers and veterans and worked to prevent reduction of armed forces in America.

"This is a man I admire and respect," Schwartz said. "He is a man of energy and gets things done."

Cameron Salome, a freshman general studies major and member of the Corps, said he supports Edwards because of contributions he has made to the military.

"He backs the military, and the contributions he's done are outstanding," Salome said. "Being a former Corps of Cadet member and Aggie, he can relate to the community like no other representative."

Regarding the attempted closing of the Waco Veterans Hospital, Edwards said he worked hard with Sen. Kay Bailey Hutchison to keep it open and has received confirmation that it will remain open.

"We owe that quality care to our veterans," Edwards said. "It would send a terrible message to the troops in Iraq by shutting down the Waco Veteran's Hospital in the same district as Fort Hood."

Parking

talk to faculty and staff, to calm their fears, basically, and find out what they really want," Weis said. "If what they really want is to maintain these reserved numbered spaces in the core of campus, we can do that. But the cost is going to be considerably higher than it is now, like 50 percent or more."

Student surface lot permits, which are currently $141 and valid for nine months, will be replaced with $210 one-year permits.

"The fall and spring semester and summer semester price would have been $226. We reduced that," Weis said.

Garage spots that are not numbered or reserved will cost $336 and be valid for one year.

Students logging on to <http://transportonline.tamu.edu> with their Net or Neo identification information and password, starting Monday, can also appeal or pay a parking citation and view their status on any parking lot waiting lists.

"It's putting all of our parking concerns on a one-stop shop," Mathews said.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Fran bobblehead giveaway Saturday

The 12th Man Foundation is giving away 100 bobblehead A&M football head coach Franchione dolls to the first students who join 12th Man Campus Saturday morning at the Maroon and White game.

This weekend is the first promotion by 12th Man Campus, a new member with the 12th Man Foundation students.

Tables will be set up on the Plaza beginning at 9 a.m. for the autograph session in the White Coliseum. The autograph session begins at 9:30 a.m.

"We wanted to have a little incentive this weekend to come with Maroon and White game Parents' Weekend," said Shipp, Editor of 12th Man Magazine On Campus. "We expect these Coach Fran bobbleheads to go quickly Saturday."

In addition to the bobblehead students will be entered in a drawing for a football autograph from Franchione. There will be a ball given away this weekend, another in a drawing on May 1.

Tables will be set up at Zone through the Maroon White game. Students can join at all three baseball games this weekend.
