NEWS IN BRIEF

Baylor professors unhappy with administrators' pay raises

WACO, Texas (AP) — Some Baylor University professors are unhappy that the school's president and top financial officer received pay increases of more than 20 percent while professors' raises averaged far less.

President Robert B. Sloan Jr. was paid $420,000 in the 2002-2003 school year, IRS records show, a 22.4 percent increase from the previous year. Joe Brooks, vice president for finance, received $250,000 that year, a 22.4 percent hike from the year before. "I think there's some people who are dismayed and amazed," said Joe Cox, president of Baylor's faculty senate.
