

U.S. Open fights with rain delays

NEW YORK (AP) — By the time Lindsay Davenport got on the court after a long, rainy day at the U.S. Open, there were only about 100 fans in the stands. Some of those folks were wandering around, too, and that caused her more trouble than Shinobu Asagoe.

Davenport overwhelmed Asagoe 6-1, 6-1 Wednesday night to reach the semifinals. She'll face No. 9 Svetlana Kuznetsova, who defeated No. 14 Nadia Petrova 7-6 (4), 6-3.

The glamour match of the tournament so far, two-time Open champion Andre Agassi vs. No. 1 Roger Federer, was suspended because of showers. Federer led 6-3, 2-6, 7-5, and the match will resume Thursday afternoon, provided more rain does not interfere.

Rain prevented the start of play again Thursday with two doubles matches scheduled before Federer and Agassi were to return to the court. Also on the day schedule was the quarterfinal between No. 4 Lleyton Hewitt and unseeded Tommy Haas. The quarterfinal between second-seeded Andy Roddick and No. 28 Joachim Johansson was set for Thursday night.

The other women's semifinal will also be United States vs. Russia: No. 8 Jennifer Capriati takes on No. 6 Elena Dementieva in the other match-up.

ing attack and to junior goalkeeper Kati Jo Spisak to mind the net against a high-powered Longhorn offense.

The Longhorns will come into the game with a three-game winning streak, having defeated the University of Michigan and Loyola University. Texas is ranked sixth in some national polls and looks to be A&M's biggest obstacle at another Big 12 championship.

"We're a veteran team," said Texas coach Chris Petrucelli. "We've been through a lot together as a squad and I think it's given us the strength and confidence to improve each game."

Texas will need big games from its senior-led group and will be looking to standout senior Kelly Wilson to lead the Longhorn attack.

"Kelly (Wilson) is a great player," Petrucelli said. "She was injured last season, but she's healthy now and really coming into her own. When she's on her game, I think (she) is one of the best players in the conference."

The game should come down to the wire, and Aggie coach G. Guerrieri is hoping the rivalry atmosphere and crowd turnout will give his squad the extra edge.

"We're going to play this game as if it were a championship game because this is a big region match-up for us," Guerrieri said. "We're going to bring intensity to the field and play the best we possibly can."

id. "None of these guys know what it'll be like until they get there. They pumped noise into the practice, but it didn't simulate Kyle Field very well."

Gagliardi said Wyoming has to get off to a good start to quiet the crowd and stay in the game.

"The coaches can talk about it, and the players can read about it all they want, but they really have no idea," Gagliardi said.

Glenn said his team might be outgunned when arriving in College Station to play a team with its back against the wall.

"Who needs to step up? Every player, every coach, every student trainer, everyone that goes down there in brown and gold has to show up," Glenn said. "We played in front of 13,000 people last week. This is an opportunity for Wyoming to play a Big 12 team and make a statement about who we are and what kind of team we have."
