and did a superlative job bringing it to the big screen.

In "Wicker Park," Mattie (Josh Hartnett) is introduced as a rising businessman with an affluent background, but after a run-in with his best friend Lisa (Matthew Lillard), whom he has not seen in more than 10 years, Matthew's life changes and his past is revealed. Matthew believes he has found his long lost love, Lisa (up-coming actress Diane Kruger), and must go through numerous challenges caused by Lisa's (Rose Byrne), a girl who loved him from afar. Before he can find the truth about who or why Lisa suddenly disappeared without an explanation years ago, he has to untangle many lies. Trying to find Lisa means changing and giving up his comfortable and well-planned lifestyle. Many hearts will end up being broken by the end of the movie.

Several flashbacks can confuse a viewer if full attention is not given, but it adds to the mystery. For those who get really into movies, this one will have them on the edge of their seats. Farrel plays mean and horrible jokes on the lives of everyone involved in the story line.

The theatrical aspects of the film are well developed and played out. The lights and sounds attributed to each character give a personable approach that helps guide audience members to certain feelings that the director wanted them to have. Antagonists and protagonists are easily spotted early on in the film, but that does not take away from the sincerity. Several clues can be identified; yet the ending is still bracing and undecided until the last moment.

"Wicker Park" is a great movie to see with friends and a special significant other.
Mixed with mystery, romance, and great twists the film can be enjoyable for all.

-actors' futures.

Drew Carey and his "Who Line is it Anyway?" crew will unveil "Green Screen," which will combine live improv comedy with animation courtesy of green screen.

"I thought the idea was really good (behind the show)," Sa-vidge said. "Improv is top-of-the-head creative skill and to do it in animation is a really new idea I've never seen it before."

"Drawn Together," Comedy Central's new animated series takes a jab at reality programs as it takes characters from different cartoon genres and sticks them in a house together, a la Brother. Look for a fairy tale process, a wacky animal creature, a superhero, a sexy rock 'n' roll detective, a black and white symbol, a crude Internet download, a gay fantasy warrior and a Japanese imported monster live together.

By the time the first Christmas tree appears in supermarkets, car-reers will have been made and broken. For channels and times audiences are advised to check local listings.
