"We do not have confirmation as of now that the body that has been found is Jack Hensley. We are still hopeful at this time that Jack Hensley is still with us," said

Hensley's wife, Pati, in a prepared statement read by family spokesman Jack Haley outside the family's home in Marietta, Ga.

"The nation's zealous sons slaughtered the second American hostage after the end of the deadline," said the first statement. It was signed with the pseudonym Abu Maysara al-Iraqi, the name usually used on statements from al-Zarqawi's group. Claims on this Web site have proven to be accurate in the past.

leaders" about Iraq in his general Assembly address does not have the credibility to lead the world."

Many world leaders hesitated to comment on Bush's speech. South African President Thabo Mbeki said, "I'm still reading the meeting entirely, seeing their foreign ministers instead."

Spanish Prime Minister Luis Rodriguez Zapatero came to power by criticizing predecessor's unpopular war for the Iraq war — said he agreed with Bush on defending the and democracy, but disagreed on other matters.

Iraq has been Bush's nemesis since the Sept. 11, 2001 attack, but he softened his speech year to discuss the "great evil of our time," like fighting human slavery, poverty, the genocide in Sudan, corruption, banning human cloning.

But Bush was unpopular about his decision to invade Iraq and he linked the chaos and violence there to the more popular war on terrorism, saying terrorists believe "suicide murder are justified ... And they act on their beliefs." He cited recent terror acts, including the deaths of children earlier this month in a Russian school.

"The Russian children did not deserve such awful suffering, fright and death," the president said.

Bush beseeched U.N. members to help rebuild Iraq, saying "U.N. and its member nations must respond to Prime Minister Allawi's request and do more to help build an Iraq that is secure, democratic, federal and free."

The president said an al-Qaida-linked terrorist group "is now one of the main threats killing the innocent in Iraq today, conducting a campaign of bombings against civilians and the beheadings of bound hostage killed.

Several hours passed Tuesday after the initial announcement with the promise video proof failing to appear Monday, by contrast, the video of Armstrong's killing was posted within an hour of the statement claiming he was
