Timothy Lai — THE BATTALION

Courtney Williams lays in two of her game-high 23 points Sunday.

game. Auburn was held to 34 percent shooting from the floor and turned the ball over 17 times, resulting in 25 A&M points.

"[Associate head coach Kelly Bond-White] did a great job of preparing our team for this game," Blair said. "This was her scout. She had it down pat. A lot of times it isn't the head coach; it's preparation by the assistant coaches. They get the work done, but sometime they're never given the credit they deserve."

Williams scored 23 points with five rebounds, while Walker added 13 points and seven rebounds.

"I think it was a great way to get back on track after two losses," Williams said. "The last two games were not good because we didn't execute. This game, I think we really executed."

Jordan Jones had 10 assists in the game, which moved her into fifth on the all-time Aggie career assists list.

The Aggies dominated in the paint, outscoring the Tigers 40-18 inside and out-rebounded them 35-22.

The win moves the Aggies to 17-5 overall, 5-3 in SEC play. The Aggie women will travel to Columbia to take on Missouri Thursday.

Upcoming films hosted by MSC Aggie Cinema

"Dear White People"

This 2014 Sundance Film Festival winner tells the story of African-American students attending a predominantly white college, Winchester University. Sam White, a mixed race student, runs a radio show called "Dear White People," causing tension among students and faculty with her criticism of both white people and the racism that exists on campus. Hosted by the WBAC with MSC Aggie Cinema at 6 p.m. Feb. 16 in Rudder Theater for no cost.

"Friday the 13th"

As if the fact that the 13th of the month falls on a Friday wasn't creepy enough, this legendary 1980 slasher flick is playing at 7 p.m. Feb. 13. "Friday the 13th" details the events at Camp Crystal Lake as counselors are hunted by a mysterious killer. Get into the Valentine's Day mood with this story of revenge, murder and gore galore. Shown in MSC 2406B.

"Big Hero 6"

Get your Kleenex ready for this action-packed, heartfelt animated comedy. Closet robotics genius Hiro Hamada's talent is realized when he is inducted into a robotics university. After a fire causes tragedy for Hiro, he must look to his new friends to restore order to the university. Shown at 7 p.m. Friday in MSC 2400 for no cost.

TAKEAWAYS CONTINUED

3 It's not quite 2006-07 yet

It's hard to compare to a year that encompassed possibly A&M's best men's basketball coach, Billy Gillispie, and player, Acie Law IV. However, the Aggies can reach that status one day with the recruits coming in and the players that are staying. A&M has done several impressive things this season, like defeating LSU and Tennessee on the road and competing well with a few ranked teams. But the Aggies haven't yet won a game against a ranked opponent. This year's squad has a lot left to prove, but they are trending in the right direction.

4 A&M will keep winning

The basketball team this week will spend a lot of time eating airport food and going through security before going on the road to Ole Miss and Missouri. Ole Miss has a three-game winning streak of its own, but if the Aggies can get past them, the future looks bright. No game is a given, but A&M already handled Missouri 62-50. Last week A&M earned a couple AP votes and will likely be ranked in the near future if the wins continue.

5 The 3-pointer was falling

The Aggies were hot behind the arc against Vanderbilt Saturday, hitting 7-of-12 from deep for 58.3 percent. The team shot better from the 3-point line than the free-throw line, where they shot 57 percent.
