Men's golf team looks to bounce back from fall slump

No. 49 Aggies begin Hawaii tournament Wednesday

By Cole Stenholm

After a sixth-place finish in its first spring event of the season, the No. 49 Texas A&M men's golf team now takes its 2015 campaign to Lihue, Hawaii, for the John A. Burns Intercollegiate event, hosted by the University of Hawaii, running Wednesday through Friday.

Texas A&M is one of 16 teams in the event, of which five are nationally ranked inside the top 50, including the four-time defending tournament champion No. 23 University of California. Texas A&M recorded a second-place finish in last year's edition, nine strokes behind California.

The Aggies, despite a slow start to the fall portion of their season, who suffered setbacks due to player injury and academic ineligibility, have already achieved a higher finish in their one spring tournament — Feb. 2 at the Sea

Best Invitational — than they did in the entire fall.

Junior Adria Arnaus said he sees the improvement, but a complete team effort will be required for their progress to continue.

"Everybody has worked a lot this last Christmas," Arnaus said. "We came back and this first tournament, there has been an improvement. That's all we look for and hopefully, right now, in Hawaii, we keep moving up. It's got to be a little bit from everybody, you know. It cannot be one or two because it's four of the ones that count. And hopefully, if we do that right and everyone is putting his own part, then at the end of the season we will be at nationals and putting for the championship."

The 6,991-yard, par-72 Wailua municipal golf course plays host to the event.

LSU CONTINUED

proceeded to go on a 24-5 run orchestrated by Tim Quarterman. After starting 0-for-2 from the field, Quarterman made his next two that both went from deep. Additionally, LSU held House scoreless for the remainder of the half, and nine A&M turnovers left the Aggies trailing by five after 20 minutes of play.

The opening eight minutes of the second half consisted of back-and-forth play until LSU sophomore forward Jarrell Martin — who averages just under 16 points per game — headed to the bench after committing his fourth foul. In turn, House sparked what would be a 12-0 run for the Aggies. House scored eight of the 12 points on the run, including the equalizer that followed an Alex Caruso steal.

A&M entered the final minute of play with a two-point advantage. Following an empty possession, LSU was forced to foul and it was House who made the trip to the charity stripe. After two made free throws from House the Aggies never looked back on their way to a 68-62 victory.

Kennedy said, simply: "You win with good players."

The Aggies look to keep their momentum going when they travel to South Carolina at 11 a.m. Saturday.

Daniel House contributed 20 points in the 68-62 Tuesday win.
